

Basic Detail Report

Title Train Crossing a Bridge in Windsor Locks Area

Date 1900-1915

Primary Maker Joseph Wilson

Medium Photography; gelatin silver print on paper

Description A railroad locomotive pulls several train cars across a railroad bridge that spans the Connecticut River, and the Windsor Locks Canal. There are utility poles and wires visible, and several buildings, possibly houses or barns, are on the opposite shoreline.

Dimensions Primary Dimensions (image height x width): 5 15/16 x 8in. (15.1 x 20.3 cm)