Basic Detail Report

Description A Native American man, apparently of gigantic size, kneels in a landscape of tree stumps. He wears a skirt of animal skins with a sash and belt; he has moccasins on his feet and a headband with three feathers in it. He holds a tomahawk over his head with his right hand. With his left hand, he bends a tree which he is in the process of chopping down. A balloon beside his head reads:

"Let the white man come and be healed." A lake or pond is at the left. A small bottle at its edge has a label that reads: "HAWES..."
