

Basic Detail Report

Title Platter

Date late 18th-early 19th century

Primary Maker Unknown

Medium Drape-molded Chinese export porcelain with underglaze cobalt blue decoration

Description Oval Chinese export porcelain platter with hand-painted underglaze cobalt blue decoration; the platter is a type of Chinese export porcelain known as Nankingware. The underglaze decoration shows a Chinese landscape. In the middle of the landscape is a tree with a series of Chinese structures and walls to the right. The tree, structures, and walls are located on land that sticks out into a body of water, most likely a river. A boat floats down the river, and a bridge connects two islands in the foreground. Two small figures can be found in the landscape, one on the bridge and one in a boat. The landscape is located on the bottom surface of the platter and is surrounded by a series of borders. The first is a plain blue line, followed by a field of white, followed by a border consisting of a band of blue with darker lines creating a diamond, or lattice, pattern inside. At three points, this border is interrupted by an area of white containing a wavy line and various figures and geometric patterns (perhaps inspired by the Eight Taoist Immortals and their symbols). This border is surrounded by a field of white, then the "Nanking" border, which is a pattern of short lines alternating between a thin line with a dot at either end and a thin line with an arrowhead at one end. The "Nanking" border is surrounded by a border of scrolls, leaves, and abstract floral motifs at the rim of the platter. Imperfections in the porcelain appear as black dots on the surface.

Basic Detail Report

Dimensions Primary Dimensions (width x depth): 16 1/2 x 13 1/4in. (41.9 x 33.7 cm)