rectangular teapot has canted corners and a narrow foot and neck. A curvy, molded spout and handle are placed on opposite sides of the teapot. The spout is gilded, and the handle was gilded, although much of the gilding has worn off over time. There is a band of gilding at the foot, neck, and rim. Lid (.1b): The lid is also rectangular with canted corners. It has a mushroom-shaped finial in the center. There is a small hole in the ceramic to one side of the finial. Gilding has been applied to the lid at the rim, at the base of the finial, and on the top surface of the finial. The gilded surfaces of the teapot and lid have worn off, specifically at the teapot handle, corners, and spout.
