

Basic Detail Report

Title Lidded Crock

Date late 19th century

Primary Maker Unknown

Medium Crock (a): Mechanically-molded stoneware with a salt glaze, brown slip glaze, and cobalt blue decoration. Lid (b): Mold-formed stoneware with a brown slip glaze.

Description Round cylindrical stoneware crock and unrelated stoneware lid.

Crock (a): The crock, or wide-mouthed jar, is cylindrical with a thick rolled rim,

Basic Detail Report

with two lug handles, each attached on opposite sides. The exterior is covered in a salt glaze, while the interior is covered in a brown slip glaze, or Albany-type slip glaze. On one side is an impressed mark of, "LEMODE, BROTHER" (?). Below this is a hand-painted cobalt blue curving vine and leaf design. The crock has a salt glaze that changes from light grey to a reddish brown in some areas. Much of the glaze surrounding the mark and around the rim has chipped off. An unknown white substance has adhered to the inside of the crock. Lid (b): The stoneware lid is covered in an Albany-type glaze, with the exception of the two rims; the lid has two rims, it seems, because it is reversible. One side of the rim is relatively plain, with a raised, unglazed rim. On the opposite side, a raised, circular, unglazed rim dips down and has a disc-shaped handle in the center. Much of this side of the lid is covered with a white substance, the same that is adhered to the inside of the crock. The lid does not fit the crock.

Dimensions Primary Dimensions (height including lid x diameter): 9 3/4 x 10 3/4 in. (24.8 x 27.3cm)