oval disc is soldered between the bottom of the handle and the body of the mug.

The body of the mug is raised; there is a centerpunch on the underside of the body. The handle and foot are cast and soldered to the body. The exterior of the mug is lightly scratched and has a few small dents. Centerpunch: A centerpunch is a small, recessed point made as the first step of a technique called raising, used to make silver hollowware. The silversmith marks the center of a silver disc with a punch, or centerpunch. Working out from that center point, the silversmith beats the silver disc with a hammer to form the shape of the finished object.
