

Basic Detail Report

Title Map of the Town of Vernon, Tolland County, Conn.

Date 1853

Primary Maker E. M. Woodford

Medium Lithography; black printer's ink and watercolor on paper

Description Physical and political map of Vernon, Connecticut, extending from Ellington to the north, Tolland to the east, Bolton to the south, and South Windsor to the west. Vernon is divided on the map into districts, all of which are labeled and outlined in a dotted line and pink or blue, except for the center district, which has no color. The Hartford, Providence and Fishkill Railroad runs through the town. Buildings and their owners are labeled, and elevation is denote with hachure marks. Bodies of water are blue. To the left of the map of the town, there is a map of the village of Vernon, which extends from D. Hale's estate to the north, the Hockanum River to the east, S. Tracy's land to the south, and the border of the town of Ellington to the west. Roads, colored peach, are not labeled. Bodies of water appear in blue and are also unlabeled. Buildings are labeled with the names of their owners. Around the map, clockwise from the top left, are thirteen vignettes: the residence of N. Kingsbury in Rockville; C. Hibbard's store and residence in Rockville; the residence of John W. Thayer in Rockville; the residence of A.C. Crosby in Rockville, the residence of Phineas Talcott, Esq., in Rockville; the Rockville Hotel; the 2nd Congregational Church in Rockville; the residence of N.O. Kellogg in Vernon; Rock Manufacturing Company's Mills in Rockville; N.O. Kellogg's woolen mill in Vernon; the American Mills in Rockville; the residence of George Kellogg in Rockville; the Congregational Church in Vernon; and the 1st Congregational Church in Rockville.

Basic Detail Report

Dimensions Primary Dimensions (image height x width): 33 1/4 x 40 5/8in. (84.5 x 103.2cm) Sheet (height x width): 37 5/8 x 43in. (95.6 x 109.2cm)