railroad stations, light houses and post offices. Altitude in feet is provided, and gradual and steep declines are marked with arrows. To the left of the map is a chart listing the distances between various places in Connecticut and Western Massachusetts. Below this are two population lists for towns in the counties depicted. On the verso is a map of most of New England, from the border of Canada and Bangor, Maine to the north, the Atlantic Ocean to the east, the Long Island Sound to the south, and the eastern part of New York State to the west. It shows roads and railroads. Above the map is an index to the towns and their populations, and in the bottom right corner is a table of distances by rail.
