Basic Detail Report

Description Map of New London, Connecticut, from Waterford to the north and west, and the Thames River and New London harbor to the east. The city is divided into five school districts, which are colored yellow, bright pink or light pink, with public spaces appearing in green. Fort Trumbull, cemeteries, parks, the town square, the court house, schools and churches are all colored green.

The New London Northern Railroad and Shore Line Railroad run through the city. Streets are labeled and black squares indicating houses are labeled with the owner's name. Some of the buildings are labeled with numbers instead of names, and in the References list in the lower right corner, the names of the owners are provided.
