Description Snow covered street scene showing Unionville at the junction of Farmington Avenue and Main Street, taken from the hill immediately to the north of Farmington Avenue. In the foreground on the left is a store that is plastered with large posters. To the right is an open building, possibly a stable. To the right of that is the three story "MacDonald House" with full width porch and hip roof at the intersection. The next street has several multistoried buildings that include (right to left) a stable, a barbershop and other storefronts. The Farmington River is in the background and several buildings on the opposite
