Description Manuscript map of Bridgeport, Connecticut, from Clinton Street to the north, the intersection of the Naugatuck and New York and New Haven Railroads and the dock to the east, South Avenue to the south, and Main Street to the west. Most of the detail is concentrated around Clinton Street, which is lined to the north with stables and the dwellings of C.H. Russell and Gideon Thomas, and to the south with Kenyon Rosseau's, S.C. Northrop's and W.H. Powers' residences and Ward's coal shed. In front of Powers' house lies the unidentified body of a man, next to which are two dots representing an umbrella and a cane; across the street is a dot representing a pistol. At the bottom of the
