Title Philip Cheney's Drawing Room After Renovation

Date 1930 - 1940

Medium Photography; black and white photograph on paper

Description View of the drawing room at Philip Cheney's house in South Manchester, Connecticut, after renovation in the 1920s. The floor appears to be made of strips of wood and has a diagonal, striped pattern to it. There are several tables and chairs in the foreground. There is a grand piano in the back left corner, with a large vase of flowers sitting on top of it. There is a fireplace in the middle of the back wall. There are bookshelves built into the wall to the left of it and there is an open doorway to the right. A large portrait of Knight Dexter
