CELEBRATING THE 150TH ANNIVERSARY OF CHIEF MATAHGA'S BIRTH

Chief Maragay/Buril Fielding was born 150 years ago. The year he was born, the tribe decided to break up the reservation in order to escape the corruption of state overseers. That corruption had resulted in the loss of most of the Royal Mohegan burial mound.

Ground in Norwich. Things were difficult all around. The Mohegan language was dying and our traditional crafts were dwindling. Life in the Fielding household was challenging. Jobs were scarce and the family relied on hunting, fishing, chopping wood, gathered crops, performing odd jobs, whatever they could do to make ends meet. Buril's large family included siblings Gertrude Fielding (later Harris, mother of Chief Peasee Uncas), Frank Fielding, Lemuel Fielding / Chief Occum, Albert Fielding, Phoebe "Nellie" Fielding (later Fowler, grandmother of Courland Fowler and Harriet Fielding (later Tantakougeon, mother of Chief Harold Tantakougeon and Medicine Woman Gladys Tantakougeon). We honor Chief Matahga this year for his hard work in preserving Mohegan traditions, including the Wigwam Festival. We look back on our tribe's journey for the last century and a half and give thanks for his leadership and vision. He helped us survive dark times and we are forever grateful for his guidance in the past, present and future.
