Title Boy's Bathrobe

Date about 1884

Primary Maker Ernest Clark

Medium Machine-stitched and hand-stitched cotton, with mother of pearl buttons

Description Small child's bathrobe of cotton, printed with a small design of two dark pink triangles and one light pink triangle, joined at the apex, on a white background. The robe has a pointed turn-down collar, edged with a strip of cotton printed in brown with a Greek key design. The robe opens for the length of the center front, and fastens with eleven mother of pearl buttons. The opening edges and hem are trimmed about 1 1/2 inches inside the edge with a strip of the Greek key cotton. The robe falls straight from the shoulders in front, and it is flared towards the hem. Across the back, it is gathered into a yoke that is edged with a strip of the Greek key-patterned cotton. The sleeves are also trimmed with the Greek key-patterned cotton. The robe is lined with cotton printed with a small brown spot pattern.

Dimensions Primary Dimensions (length x width with sleeves outstretched): 33 x 22 1/2in. (83.8 x 57.2cm)
