Title A map of Europe and the Countries bordering on the Mediterranean and Black Seas, From the latest Authorities

Date 1830

Primary Maker John Warner Barber

Medium Engraving; black printer's inks and watercolors on wove paper

Description Map of Europe and parts of the Middle East and Africa, from Iceland to the north, Armenia to the east, Tripoli to the south, and the Atlantic Ocean to the west. Settlements are marked with circles and labeled, and rivers are labeled. There are several routes, denoted with dotted lines and unlabeled, that are probably exploration and discovery or military routes. The one water route shows St. Paul's journey from Caesarea to Rome. To the left of the map is a list of the populations of the European countries. Below the map are the flags of Britain, France, Spain, Portugal, the Netherlands, Sweden, Russia, Prussia, Austria, Rome, Sardinia, Greece and Turkey, and they have been colored in; next to the flags is a key explaining how the different types of shading correspond to different colors. Around the map on the left and right sides are, in clockwise order, vignettes of St. Petersburg, Amsterdam, Berlin, Vienna, Constantinople, Lisbon, Madrid, Paris, Rome and London. A brief description of each city and its population size are provided beneath each vignette.
