Date about 1932

Primary Maker Arthur J. Patton

Medium Lithography; black and colored printer's ink on paper

Description Street map of Waterbury, Connecticut, extending from the town line of Plymouth to the north, the town line of Wolcott to the east, the town line of Prospect to the south, and the town lines of Middlebury and Watertown to the west. The streets and lots are labeled with names and numbers, respectively. Neighborhoods are also labeled with their names. Estates, land owned by companies, and larger lots are labeled with the name of the owner and the number of acres. Parks and cemeteries are colored green, roads are yellow, bodies of water are colored teal or blue-green, and hospitals and industrial buildings are red. There are concentric circles radiating from the center of the city. To the top left, there is a list of mayors, public schools, sectarian and private schools, public buildings, factories, churches and fire stations. To the top right is a street index, and below it, there is information about the population and grand list of Waterbury from 1853 - 1930. Below this, there is a subdivision index. At the bottom left, there is a list titled, "Elevations Above Tide Water At New Haven."
