Title Map of the City of New Haven from Surveys

Date 1852

Primary Maker R. Whiteford

Medium Engraving; black printer's ink on wove paper

Description Map of the city of New Haven, Connecticut, from Beaver Hills and East Rock to the north, Fairhaven to the east, the New Haven Harbor to the south, and Evergreen Cemetery to the west. The streets are labeled and churches, banks, hotels and public buildings are represented by black rectangles. The buildings are numbered and named in the corresponding references list. Also shown are the city burial ground, York Square, Yale College, the State House, State Hospital, Alms House, Public Square and Wooster Square. Sachem's Wood is located to the north of the city. Between New Haven and Fairhaven are the Mill River and the Quinnipiac River; in the bottom left corner of the map, the West River is shown. The New York and New Haven Railroad; the New Haven and Northampton; the New Haven, Hartford and Springfield Railroad; and the New Haven and New London Railroad all run through the city. Elevation is conveyed through hachure marks.
