the rivers. A large body of water above the Central Wharf and below Yantic Falls is identified as the Cove. The locations of several springs are shown. The city is divided into three wards. Streets are identified and houses and buildings are identified by street number. The New London, Willimantic and Palmer Railroad runs along the west bank of the Thames; the Norwich and Worcester Railroad runs along the right bank. Cemeteries, churches, parks, and some businesses are identified, including the town poor house, a ropewalk, a papermill, a gristmill, a coal yard, H. Bill's Laurel Hill Farm, and the Falls Manufacturing Company.

Vignettes at the left, top, and right of the map depict the Norwich Free Academy, the premises of Myers and Bailey, Architects and Builders, and the residences of

C. C. Brand, J. Hunt Adams, William W. Coit, Joseph Backus, Dr. J. V. Wilson, Charles N. Farnum, and General W. Williams.
