Title Building Being Demolished, Hartford, Connecticut

Date 1980

Primary Maker Richard Welling

Medium Drawing; black ink on paper

Description Drawing of the demolition of a building on Asylum Street in downtown Hartford, Connecticut, near the Goodwin Building, which is depicted in the background on the right. The building is six stories high, and the top two stories are actively being demolished. There is a crane in front of the building with some kind of wrecking device suspended from it, carrying materials in its jaws. In the background on the left, a building can be seen with the street number 163 on it.
