Basic Detail Report

Southern New England Apprenticeship Program team in Finnish fiddling.

Teaching artists John Chambers and Christine Anderson with apprentice Saul

Ahola. The other was an initiative in Finnish folk dance organized by apprentice Saul Ahola. Apprentice Saul Ahola, a physician and long-time member of the Finnish American Heritage Society (FAHS) in Canterbury, Connecticut, worked with teacher Christine Anderson on Finnish fiddle repertoire, and John Chambers for fiddle technique (although both teachers are very familiar with Finnish folk music). Their concert presentation at FAHS included performance by all three artists as well as information on the fiddle tradition in Finland, and involved dancers and singers from the community.
