Description Seymour family coat of arms drawn by William Johnston. There is a red shield in the center with joined yellow wings within. Above the shield are a helmet and a torse (roll of yellow and red fabric above the helmet). There are decorative supporters on either side of the shield. Below the shield is the motto "Foy Pour Devior" (Faith For Duty), which is probably a misspelling of "Devoir." Below this is the text "He beareth Gules, a Pair of Wings Inverted and Conjoyn'd Or. by the name of SEYMOUR."
