Title Reverend Joseph Steward and Sarah Moseley Steward

Date about 1798

Primary Maker Joseph Steward

Medium Painting; oil on canvas in frame

Description Painting of Reverend Joseph Steward and either his daughter, Sarah Moseley Steward, or an unidentified granddaughter, attributed to Steward (self-portrait). Steward is seated in an upholstered chair, and the girl appears to be standing next to a small table on which is sitting an inkwell, quill pen, and piece of paper. She is holding a small bird on her outstretched finger. Steward's left arm is resting on a table over which red cloth is draped, with an artist's palette next to him.
