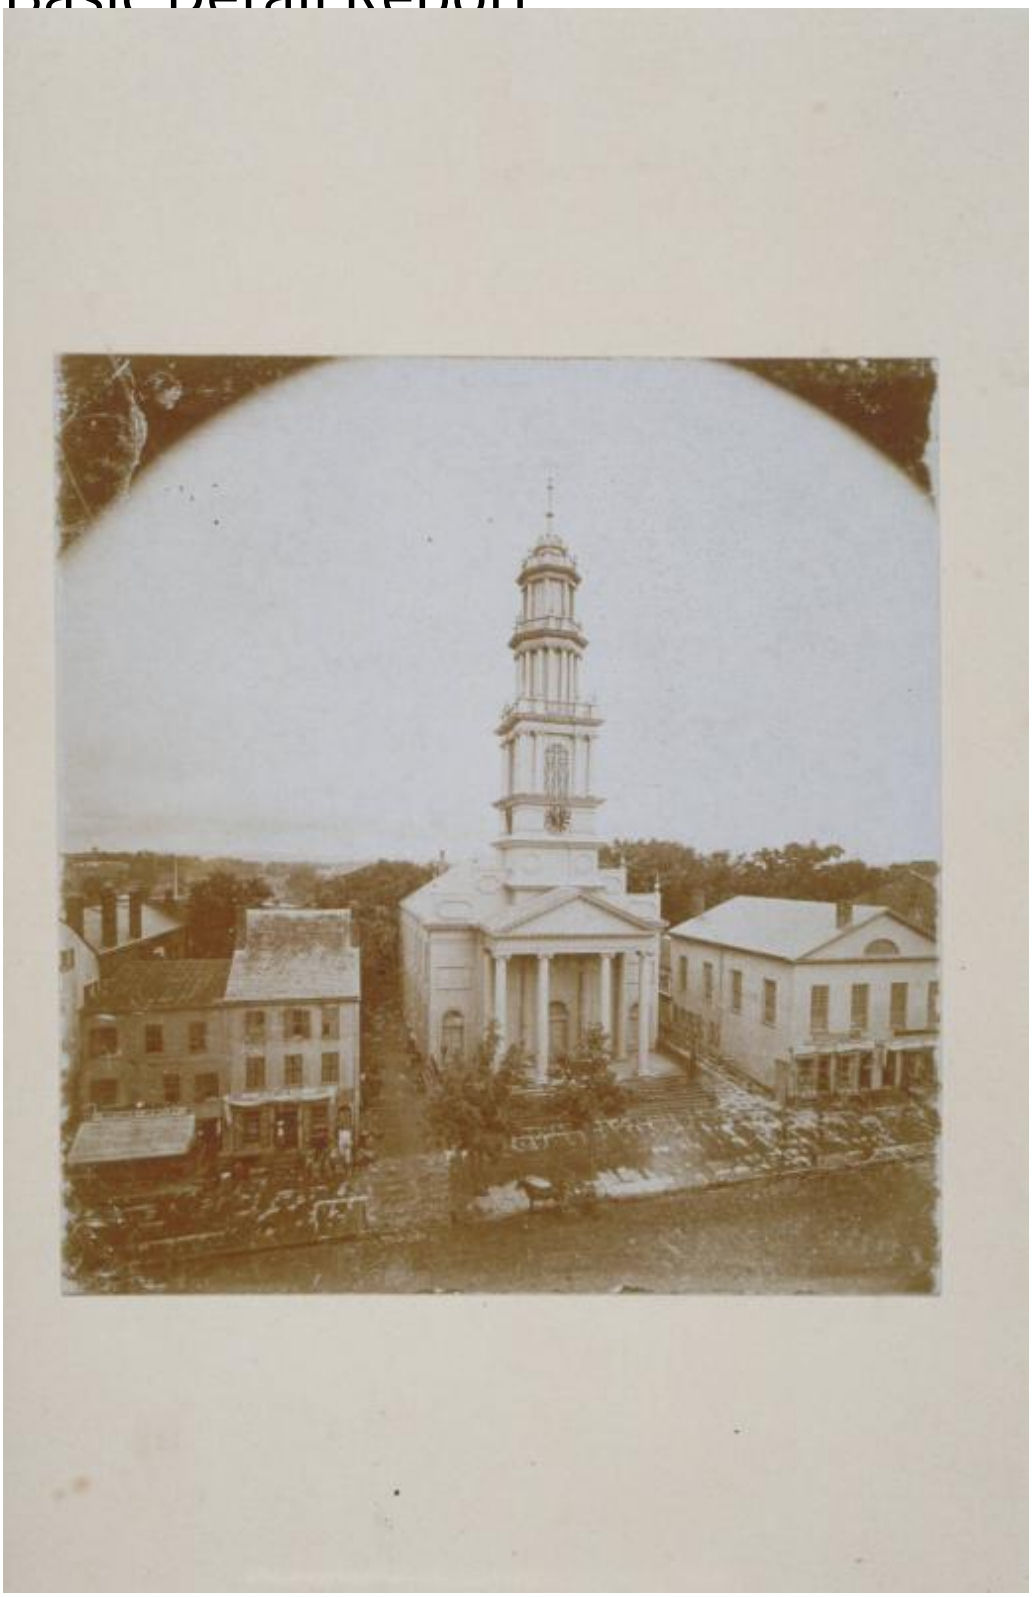
Basic Detail Report



Title Center Congregational Church and adjoining buildings, Main Street, Hartford

Date 1860

Basic Detail Report

Medium Photography;

Description Photograph of Center Congregational Church and adjoining buildings, Main Street, Hartford. The church and nearby commercial buildings are seen from an elevated viewpoint, probably a rooftop. The church has a steeple with a clock and a pediment supported by Ionic columns. Signs on stores read: "223 Seyms & Co. 223", "Watches and Jewelry", and "Henry Lewith." Some businesses have awnings. Light snow is on the paved sidewalk. A horse-drawn vehicle is in the street in the foreground. Inscribed on back: "The buildings on the left of the Center Church / standing between that building & Gold Street / were formerly occupied by Humphrey Seyms / and James L. Howard & Co. The buildings were / destroyed about 1898 to increase the width of Gold Street."

Dimensions Primary Dimensions (image height x width): 3 15/16 × 3 15/16in. (10 × 10cm) Primary Dimensions (overall height x width): 10 × 6 15/16in. (25.4 × 17.6cm)