for engraved banknotes for the Washington Bank of Westerly, Rhode Island, in 1803. This side of the plate includes one copy of the ten dollar note and three copies of the five dollar note. Each note incorporates a profile bust-length portrait of George Washinton wearing a military uniform and crowned with a laurel wreath, and an aquatint design at the left, presumably because the aquatint design would be impossible for a forger to duplicate.
