

Basic Detail Report

Title Commemorating the Brass Industry in Waterbury

Date 1947

Medium Drawing; ink and gouache with graphite on white wove paper mounted to board

Description Drawing of man, meant to represent James M. L. Scoville, seated at a desk, looking at a piece of paper, presumably a letter. There are several other sheets of paper on his desk, and three buttons. In the background through an open window is a view of what appear to be factory buildings, with several men walking around. Some of the men have wheelbarrows and some have horse-drawn carts or wagons.

Dimensions Primary Dimensions (height x width): 21 5/8 x 14 3/8in. (54.9 x 36.5 cm)
