Title The Heart of New England

Medium Lithography; black and blue printer's ink on wove paper, in cardboard covers

Description Two-sided map, with one side depicting part of southern New England, with New Hampshire to the north, the Atlantic Ocean to the west, Voluntown, Connecticut to the south. Maine, Vermont, northern New Hampshire, and the western and southern parts of Connecticut and Rhode Island are not shown. The map shows through roads, "good roads," local and private roads, and churches, schools, cemeteries, town halls, and light houses. Steam and electric railroad lines are also depicted, as are railroad stations. Altitude, presumably in feet, is given numerically. On the other side is a map of part of the Connecticut River Valley, from the border of Vermont to the north, New London County, Connecticut to the east, the Long Island Sound to the south, and the border of New York to the west. The map shows through roads, "good roads," local and private roads, and churches, schools, cemeteries, town halls, and light houses. Steam and electric railroad lines are also depicted, as are railroad stations. Altitude, presumably in feet, is given numerically. On the left side is a distance chart and below that are population tables for the cities and towns of Massachusetts and Connecticut that are shown on this side of the map.
