Date about 1850-1855

Primary Maker Unknown

Medium Hand-stitched leather, linen, and silk

Description Black leather slippers with rounded square toe, long vamp, square throatline, and flat, straight sole. The vamp is decorated with a black silk ribbon rosette over a bow. The slippers are lined with plain-woven linen in the vamp, and blue and white striped silk in the quarters, which has worn away to reveal a thin leather heel stiffener. The sock lining is white kid skin. The throatline is bound with narrow black silk ribbon. One very narrow black silk tape remains stitched to the side of slipper "a"--originally, the slippers had a pair of ties that could have laced around the ankle.
