

Basic Detail Report

Title Helmet

Date 1917-1918

Primary Maker Paul Klatt

Medium Steel

Description WWI U. S. Army helmet from the 26th Yankee Division, 102nd Infantry, originally belonging to Paul Klatt of Rocky Hill, Connecticut. This style of helmet was designed by John Leopold Brodie and was manufactured using Hadfield steel. The steel is heavily corroded. The crown area of the helmet is a rounded oval shape with a 1.75-inch ovular brim. The insignia for the 102nd

Basic Detail Report

Infantry is painted at the center front portion of the crown and depicts the Charter Oak tree in green and brown on a white square background. There are rivets visible on the exterior at the top center of the crown and on both the proper right and left sides of the brim. The underside of the helmet brim features a metal bracket on both the proper left and right sides, these brackets would have held the chin strap. The interior padded leather structures and straps of the helmet are no longer extant.

Dimensions Primary Dimensions (length x width x height): $12 \frac{1}{4} \times 11 \frac{1}{4} \times 5$ in.

($31.1 \times 28.6 \times 12.7$ cm)