Title Boy's Shirt

Date about 1850-1875

Primary Maker Geer family

Medium Hand-stitched cotton, with mother of pearl buttons

Description Boy's shirt of white cotton, made of a long rectangle folded in half along one side. The seam is stitched selvage-to-selvage on the opposite side. The neckline is wide and rounded, with a 1/2-inch-wide band that fastens with a single mother of pearl button at the center front opening. Gussets set into the shoulder provide width for the neck opening. The long sleeves taper to the wrist, where they originally fastened with a button (now missing). The sleeves are set smoothly into the armhole. The shoulders are lined with self-fabric between the
