Description Three Greek revival academic buildings are on a low tree-covered hill overlooking a river. The central building has a square tower and a portico and appears to be a chapel. A railroad car is visible on the bank on the far side of the river. In the foreground, a man carrying an umbrella and a boy walk along a dirt road. The boy points at two men with oars in a small boat, evidently a rowboat. Another man stands beside a small house at the right. Additional buildings, possibly including farm buildings, are nearby. Boards or logs are on the grass near the house. A pair of wagon wheels are on the road at the far right.
