Caribbean islands, from the border of Canada to the north, the Atlantic Ocean to the east, Guatemala to the south, and the Pacific Ocean to the west. Relief is conveyed through hachure marks. The bottom and sides are decorated with a border of stars linked by chains, and at all four corners, there is a shield are three vignettes, with images of Cortez and Montezuma flanking a larger portrait of Washington. The frames around Cortez and Montezuma contain various symbols: volcanos, shells, stars, suns, flags and eagles. Around Washington's portrait are mirror images featuring leafy oak branches laden with acorns, cornucopias or horns of plenty, liberty caps, and the American flag. On the right side of the portrait are a banner that says "Liberty" and a list of facts about Montezuma; on the left, there are a banner that says "Justice" and a list of facts about Cortez. Below the map, there are five more vignettes. At the far left is a list entitled, "Chronological and Statistical View of the United States," which contains dates of settlements and notable events up to 1846, as well as statistics on population, soldiers, money, slaves, and more. Next to it is a portrait of

Oregon Territory. In the center there is an image of Templo Mayor, an Aztec
