Description Folding map of the state of Connecticut, including the Long Island Sound. The map shows state parks, colored red, and state forests, colored green, both of which are also listed in the key on the left side. Cities are labeled and denoted with circles of varying sizes according to population. Regulated streams are marked with broken red lines, regulated hunting grounds with yellow stars, and regulated lakes and ponds in brown. Highways, local roads and railroads are shown. Highway picnic areas and monuments are marked with red symbols. Also on the left side of the sheet are drawings of the outdoor activities Connecticut offers: boat, camping, visiting historic sites, picnicking, swimming, hiking trails, visiting view points, and participating in winter sports. On the back, there are black-and-white photographs of the state's parks and forests, a map of Connecticut with parks marked with circles and forests marked with triangles, a mileage chart listing towns and their distances from the parks and forests, and information about hunting and fishing.
