Description Small bank building in Renaissance style on a street corner. The lower story appears to be of cut stone, with round arches over the door and window, carved keystones and small Ionic columns and pilasters. The upper story is of brick with a Palladian window, Corinthian pilasters, a dentil molding and a very heavy cornice. The dates 1846 and 1893 are inset in medallions. A banister railing crowns the roofline. The road in front of the building is paved with cobblestones. The brick commercial building immediately to the left has sign: "Watches, Jewelry."
