

A portrait of William Shakespeare, a man with long, wavy, light-colored hair, wearing a dark red garment with a white ruffled collar. The portrait is set within an ornate, gilded frame. The frame is displayed in a museum setting, with a silver metal mesh barrier visible on the right side. A small white label is placed at the bottom center of the frame, containing the text: "WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE - 1564-1616", "Self-portrait", "Engraving by Martin Droghda", "National Portrait Gallery, London".

Reference photo only

Primary Maker Stephen Bulkeley

Description Portrait of Stephen Bulkeley in middle age. He has long blond hair and is wearing a black coat, white ruffled shirt and stock, and a red brocade waistcoat. Painting was originally attributed to Ralph Earl but was later said to be a copy by Joseph Steward.

Basic Detail Report

Dimensions Primary Dimensions (height x width): 25 × 19in. (63.5 × 48.3cm)