Adrien Braun is a 21 year old college student at Trinity College in Hartford Connecticut. He was born and raised in New York and discovered his transgender identity early in childhood. With the initial support of his mother and eventual acceptance by his step-father, he was able to receive gender affirming care in childhood. Adrien notes coming out of the closet as transgender as a central moment of change in his life. He notes that ultimately, this process is still ongoing as his transition has spanned years and still includes additional gender affirming action and self-discovery. In addition to this pivotal change, he notes the changing nature of childhood and coming of age more generally as they took place in the background of his transition.
